Simplifying medical records to operate better with the cloud

Submitted By: Julie Ferreira

Headquartered in Naples, Scribe Technology Solutions is simplifying the medical records industry with its cloud-based platform, which offers flexibility, control and productivity to healthcare providers.

Scribe's mission of simplifying healthcare through innovative technologies evolved from Naples entrepreneur Mark D. Boyce's past success in the management of organizations large and small. Boyce founded Scribe with the understanding that healthcare's growing amount of collected data needed a solution for effective handling, along with the ability to use all this data in a positive way. Scribe utilizes this data by incorporating specialized technology to develop tools to help healthcare providers spend less time doing data entry and paperwork; to have a clearer understanding of their financial well-being; and to spend more face-to-face interactions with their patients. Providers see an increase in productivity, profitability, and improved patient care, and are enabled to focus on what matters most – patient care. Scribe has the unique ability to offer tailored solutions that are designed for each medical practice and their workflows. It offers flexibility that can accommodate all practice sizes and specialties.

As Scribe has grown and evolved, Boyce spends much time working with potential partners and investors, exploring new opportunities where Scribe could expand with its unique tools, solutions, and employee skills could be utilized in new areas or types of businesses. He also stays involved in occasional technical problem solving, including programming for "fun" and remains the strategic product manager driving the product and technical vision for the company.
